

Dear FCC --

The concept of a "broadcast flag" and encryption is far too restrictive. We don't want legislation that makes criminals of anyone making a couple of copies of music, video, etc.

Industry has always been fearful that new technology would be a financial disaster. The movie industry thought that VCR's would be just such a disaster, and fought against them. In reality the film industry now makes more profit on videos than they had ever envisioned.

Let's not give in to industry fears. Let's continue to protect consumers. New technology has always generated more business, not less.

Sincerely,

Joan Hudson
